cordially invite you to a special free workshop:*

How to Resolve Common Urban Wildlife Problems: Effective and Humane Solutions for NYC Residents

Having problems with raccoons, squirrels, opossums, pigeons or other urban wildlife? Some wild animals are both adaptive and opportunistic, which allows them to survive quite well in NYC despite the close proximity to people. However, conflicts can develop when urban dwellers and wildlife try to live within the same landscape. Led by a wildlife expert from The Humane Society of the United States, this interactive workshop will focus on practical, effective and long term solutions to common urban wildlife problems.

Saturday, January 22, 2011 – 10am to 1pm
Holy Name of Jesus Parish, 245 Prospect Park West,
